

Licenciado Enrique Esquivel
Diputado por Paruro

6 July 1936

Constable-Oculate Lee -

I write on an urgent matter after a meeting from which I barely escaped with my life.

The [REDACTED] called [REDACTED] informed me through clandestine channels of a matter of international importance likely developing across the Atlantic. A tapestry belonging to the friar [REDACTED] has been stolen from the [REDACTED] within the last week. As you are likely aware, though [REDACTED] is only a marginal figure in the religious history of the viceroyalty, his name has long been a particular target of suppression by the branches of [REDACTED] insists the tapestry poses a significant threat and will likely be smuggled to Britain within the month.

[REDACTED] provided me with several possible masterminds and/or perpetrators of the crime. I pass the accusations along only out of respect for his wrath. I cannot attest to their basis in fact.

[REDACTED] - I find this deeply unlikely. He has never visited the Haustorium and therefore Robigo has taken deep offense.

[REDACTED] - Much more likely, in my view. I do not trust worms.

[REDACTED] - The most troubling possibility. I would hope that it is only the Twins and the Mother who have aims for that odd little lake of yours, but she may yet be moving more boldly.

[REDACTED] - I was surprised to hear this name spoken, when I had thought much of her work had been resolved of late. I personally hope that is the case.

For my part, I think there is merely a cabal of idiot adepts out there who have chosen to make an enemy of a [REDACTED]. Enjoy chasing after this one.

Always at your service,

Enrique J. Esquivel